Jason W. Anderson handles disputes in appellate courts and helps trial counsel win key issues and position cases for appeal.

Jason has handled appeals in state and federal appellate courts for over two decades. He particularly understands the importance of excellent brief writing. Through meticulous, hard work, Jason has earned a reputation as one of Washington's top brief writers.

Clients trust Jason with high-stakes appeals. He routinely assists clients in challenging large money judgments. His clients include over a dozen Fortune 500 companies.

Jason's appellate victories include many precedent-setting decisions, including Matter of Estate of Petelle, 195 Wash.2d 661 (2020) (holding that a separation agreement that settles all marital property rights waives a spouse's statutory right to intestate succession), and Keodalah v. Allstate Insurance Company, 194 Wash.2d 339 (2019) (disallowing insurance-bad-faith claims against claims adjusters).

Before joining Carney Badley Spellman, Jason clerked for the Honorable David H. Armstrong at the Court of Appeals of the State of Washington, Division Two. Jason attended law school on a presidential scholarship and served as executive editor of Seattle University Law Review.

When away from his desk, Jason can usually be found outside hiking or paddle boarding with his dog or watching his son and daughter participate in competitive sailing.
