Andrew Stokes guides his clients through business and real estate disputes in state and federal courts.

Andrew's practice focuses on business and real estate litigation. Andrew handles breach of contract cases, real estate disputes, boundary disputes, landlord-tenant disputes, and other business-related claims. He represents businesses large and small, business people, property owners, and property managers. Andrew is committed to understanding and pursuing his clients' goals. He helps his clients navigate commercial disputes with an eye toward their business objectives and seeks creative and cost-effective resolutions to problems. He has particular experience managing electronic discovery, including in complex litigation.

Prior to joining Carney, Andrew was an associate at an international law firm, and before that, he spent several years as a business intelligence analyst for a Seattle-based company.
